The Camomile Lawn is a 1984 novel by Mary Wesley beginning with a family holiday in Cornwall in the last summer of peace before the Second World War.
When the family is reunited for a funeral nearly fifty years later, it brings home to them how much the war acted as a catalyst for their emotional liberation.

~~The Camomile Lawn - Wikipedia~~

It is August, 1939, and while war looms, they are very much aware they may never meet again like this, all together, on their aunt's sweet-smelling camomile lawn.

The Camomile Lawn by Mary Wesley is a provocative novel that tells the story of five cousins during their annual holiday in a house by the sea. It is the summer of 1939, the last the cousins will share together as the world is on the edge of war.

~~The Camomile Lawn by Mary Wesley - Goodreads~~

'The Camomile Lawn' is Mary Wesley's second major novel, but there is no trace of the difficult second book syndrome with this entertaining story - maybe this is, in no small part, due to the fact that although this book is the second in a sequence of novels which were published when the author was in her seventies, Mary Wesley

Based on Mary Wesley's experiences in London during the Blitz, the juxtaposing freedom from convention and the ever-present terror of war are at odds throughout the novel. It exposes what's truly important to the characters - the things they value and are unwilling to sacrifice.

Presents the lives and loves of a family of cousins from 1939 to the present. Follows very closely the Mary Wesley novel. Begins with a funeral and uses the reminiscences of those gathered to fill in details in the lives of Richard and Helena and their nieces and nephews. Written by Dorothy Burgess.
